Citing party unity, Thompson concedes

Joining forces. Bill Thompson dropped out of the mayor's race and endorsed Bill de Blasio.

Bill Thompson officially ended his second mayoral run yesterday morning, taking to the steps of City Hall to throw his support behind Bill de Blasio.

As the Republican party coalesces behind Joe Lhota, with John Catsimatidis this weekend rescinding his bid to run on a third party line, it appeared New York City Democrats are feeling a sense of urgency to do so as well.

"There is nothing more beautiful than Democratic unity," de Blasio declared as he accepted Thompson's concession and endorsement.

Governor Andrew Cuomo also praised Thompson for stepping back in the interest of party unity. Cuomo noted it is "often more difficult to step back than to step forward," and applauded Thompson for putting aside ambition in the interest of re-taking City Hall for the Democratic Party.

And referring to de Blasio as "a great New Yorker," Thompson bowed to party unity, granting "the best way to return fairness and decency, justice and dignity, hope and equality to every neighborhood in New York is to return a progressive to City Hall."

"Is it a difficult decision? Sure," Thompson said of stepping down. "But it's the right decision."

But Thompson's ire at the Board of Elections was not diminished, which seemed to play a role in his decision as well.

He pointedly and repeatedly condemned the BOE for the delay in counting ballots, which he said made it "impossible to even campaign, let alone offer a meaningful choice to Democratic voters" in a potential runoff.

Election 2013. Lhota ready for 'rigorous debate' with de Blasio

After Bill Thompson conceded Monday, Republican nominee Joe Lhota said he was looking forward to a "rigorous debate" with Public Advocate Bill de Blasio, the Democratic nominee.

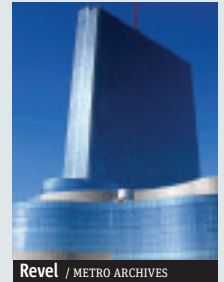

"It's going to be a great campaign for all New Yorkers, you're going to see different points of view, very divergent, different points of view, about the direction that the city wants to go in," Lhota said.

Still, he noted that de Blasio's campaign platform, declaring a "Tale of Two Cities," was divisive.

NY couple sues over slots promotion

A New York couple claims Revel Casino-Hotel's summer slots promotion, which promised money back for any loss over $100, was misleading.

Nicholas and Margaret Peragine, of Long Island, sued in federal court in New York, Essex County, last week, according to reports. They claim the promotion was misleading when it claimed gamers who lost more than $100 playing slots at Revel in July would get their money back.

The casino actually gave players 5 percent of their total losses in slot dollars, with no cash value, the lawsuit states.

The Peragines claim the Atlantic City casino's ads did not mention restrictions.

Bloomberg reacts to shooting: 'There are too many guns'

Repeat. Mayor Bloomberg railed against gun violence in the country after news of the D.C. massacre.

New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg spoke about the devastating effects of gun violence as details on the Washington Navy Yard shooting emerged at an unrelated press conference in Harlem on Monday.

In his comments, Bloomberg made a point of saying that details on the shooting, which has claimed at least 13 lives, are still scarce.

Bloomberg, a vocal anti-gun violence advocate, noted with some exasperation that some 12,000 Americans will be killed by guns this year, according to estimates.

"That is just carnage," Bloomberg said.

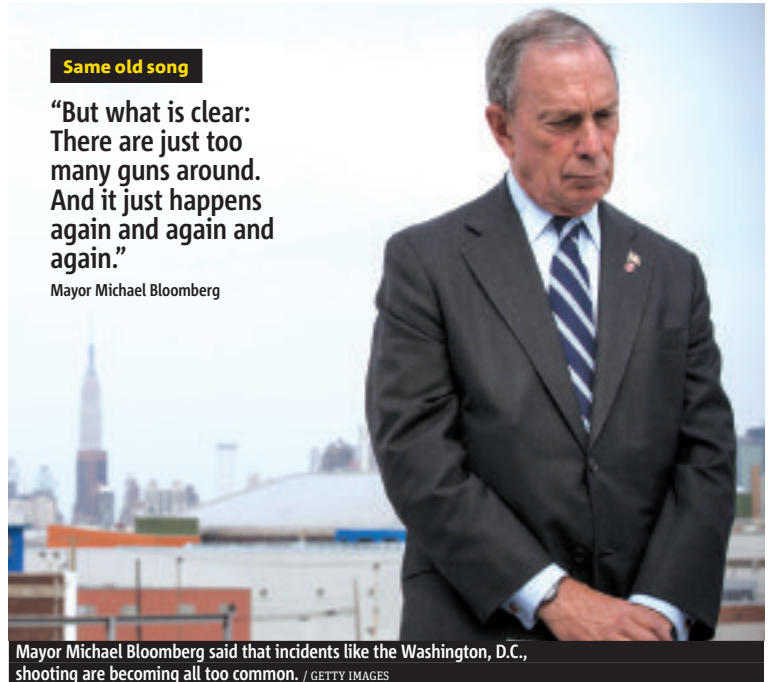

He said that the deaths from gun violence have started to "dwarf" tolls from major events, such as the two World Wars.

"It just continues to go on," he said.

Same old song

"But what is clear: There are just too many guns around. And it just happens again and again and again."

After the shooting in Washington, D.C., security was increased in the city, Bloomberg said, as it usually happens during such events.

"Sometimes I'm not even sure that's possible, 'cause we work as hard as we can every day to keep the security as high a level [as possible]," he said.

Mayor Bloomberg also refused several times to elaborate on his recent comment labeling Public Advocate Bill de Blasio's mayoral campaign "racist."

"Look, I'm going to stay out of this race," Bloomberg responded when asked about the comment, published in a New York Magazine interview nine days ago.

"As you know, I said I'm not going to endorse anybody. You'll have to talk to the pundits," Bloomberg told reporters.

Mustang slams into pole, 19-year-old driver killed

A 19-year-old drove a 2006 Ford Mustang into a light pole in Brooklyn on Sunday.

Police responded to a 911 call around 12:39 p.m. They arrived at the intersection of Linden Boulevard and Christopher Street to discover that two vehicles had collided.

Cops said a preliminary investigation shows that the Mustang was driving eastbound on Linden Boulevard when it struck the median, a light pole and the second vehicle, a 2006 Toyota that was also traveling eastbound on Linden Boulevard.

The driver of the Mustang was taken to Brookdale Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

Police said the driver and passenger in the second car were not injured.

NYC: Report

The suspected D.C. gunman who was reportedly killed in a firefight with police after fatally shooting about a dozen people at a Washington, D.C., Navy Yard was a New York City native.

Aaron Alexis / FBI

According to public records, he was still registered to vote in Queens, though the last time he voted was 13 years ago in 2000.

By yesterday afternoon, police said his mother, Cathleen Alexis, was being questioned in her home in Bed-Stuy by the FBI and NYPD. His brother-in-law Anthony Little, standing in front of the family home yesterday afternoon to address the public, said the family is "distracted" about about the shooting. Little's wife, Naomi Alexis, is Aaron's sister.

His father said he was currently "in school and working at a job" at a private company in a "computer-related" position.

tant director in charge of the Washington field office of the FBI, asked the public for help with information about Alexis. Authorities said they were searching for another possible gunman wearing military-style clothing.

Earlier, officials said they were looking for two men, but then said police had established one of them was not a suspect in the shooting, which began at about 8.30 a.m.

A 34-year-old man opened fire at the U.S. Navy Yard yesterday in a shooting that left 13 people dead, including the gunman, not far from the U.S. Capitol and the White House, officials said.

The suspect was identified by the FBI as Aaron Alexis of Fort Worth, Texas. Washington, D.C., police chief Cathy Lanier told reporters that Alexis "was engaged in shooting with police officers" when he died.

Non-compliance

Western powers say Syria must face consequences

France, Britain and the United States called yesterday for a swift U.N. resolution committing Syria to remove its chemical weapons, but Russia introduced a note of caution about imposing strong consequences if President Bashar al-Assad failed to comply.

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry reaffirmed that an accord reached at the weekend with Russian counterpart Sergei Lavrov targeted a U.N. resolution referring to sanctions for non-compliance, including a new Security Council resolution.

UN chemical experts confirm sarin gas used

U.N. chemical investigators yesterday confirmed the use of sarin gas in an Aug. 21 poison gas attack in the suburbs of Damascus.

As expected, the report does not say who launched the attack in the rebel-held Damascus suburb of Ghouta.

"On the basis of the evidence obtained during the investigation of the Ghouta incident, the conclusion is that chemical weapons have been used in the ongoing conflict between the parties in the Syrian Arab Republic, also against civilians, including children, on a relatively large scale," said the report by chief U.N. investigator Ake Sellstrom of Sweden.

Study: Exercise, diet habits improving among youth

The researchers found "encouraging" trends on measures of most diet and lifestyle habits. / GETTY IMAGES

Tube. The average number of hours students spent watching TV each day fell from 3.1 to 2.4.

Over the last decade, U.S. kids and teenagers have started getting slightly more exercise and reduced their television watching, a new study suggests.

Using surveys conducted in middle and high schools, researchers also found increases in the number of days youth reported having breakfast each week and in how often they ate fruits and vegetables. Those trends have corresponded to a leveling off in obesity rates, but not a decline, the study showed.

"I would like to believe that all the public health efforts focusing on increasing physical activity and increasing fruit and vegetable consumption are having an effect, because that seems to be a pattern," Ronald Iannotti, the lead author on the study from the University of Massachusetts Boston, said.

"The fact that [obesity] is leveling off, that's a surprise and a major change from the steady increase that we've seen over time," Iannotti, who worked on the study while at the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in Bethesda, Md., said. "This is great news."

Disruptive 9/11 suspect ejected from Gitmo courtroom

Outburst. “You cannot make me stop talking,” he yelled at the judge.

An accused conspirator in the 9/11 attacks was hustled out of the Guantanamo war crimes courtroom yesterday when he refused to stop shouting during a chaotic hearing that was cut short because one of the lawyers was ill.

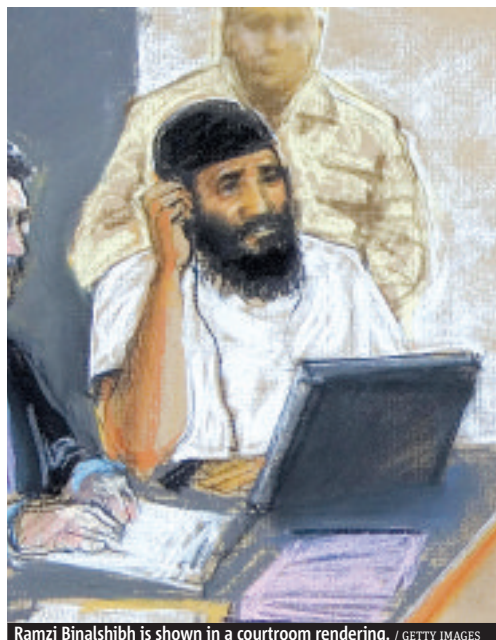

“I have the right to talk!” Yemeni defendant Ramzi Binalshibh yelled in English.

After he ignored repeated warnings to be quiet, the judge ejected Binalshibh for disruptive conduct and guards in camouflage uniforms escorted him out of the courtroom at the Guantanamo Bay U.S. Naval Base in Cuba.

The judge, Army Colonel James Pohl, was questioning the five defendants about whether they understood their right to be present in court in order to assist in their defense.

Binalshibh and the alleged mastermind of the hijacked planes plot, Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, responded with complaints about restrictions imposed during their meetings with lawyers.

“Remove him now,” the judge ordered after several warnings. The exchange continued as three guards led Binalshibh away out of microphone range but the judge appeared to have the last word: “Yes, I can.”

Cheryl Bormann, who represents Yemeni defendant Walid bin Attash, was hoarse and barely able to speak. Her doctor ordered bed rest and court was adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. REUTERS

Strategy

Al Qaeda leader urges restraint in first ‘guidelines for jihad’

Al Qaeda leader Ayman al-Zawahri has issued his first specific guidelines for jihad, urging restraint in attacking other Muslim sects and non-Muslims and in starting conflicts in countries where jihadis might find a safe base to promote their ideas.

The document, published by the SITE monitoring service, provides a rare look at al Qaeda’s strategy 12 years after the 9/11 attacks on the United States and the nature of its global ambitions from North Africa to the Caucasus to Kashmir.

While al Qaeda’s military aim remained to weaken the United States and Israel, Zawahri stressed the importance of “dawa,” or missionary work, to spread its ideas.

Those comments are particularly relevant for North Africa, where many analysts believe al Qaeda is using the less restrictive environment which followed the 2011 Arab uprisings to seek new followers, often through local alliances, while avoiding drawing attention to itself by eschewing attacks. REUTERS

Quoted

“As far as targeting the proxies of America is concerned, it differs from place to place. The basic principle is to avoid entering into any conflict with them, except in the countries where confronting them becomes inevitable.”

Has Miley been planning this craziness all along?

Miley Cyrus is on the cover of the new Harper's Bazaar, looking demure — but then again, maybe she looks good because we're not used to seeing her actually wearing clothing.

The article doesn't mention The Twerk Heard Around the World™ but she does coyly mention trying to become omnipresent. And, as we all know, it's working.

"It's been a year since I started trying to take over the world," the actress told the mag. And who do we have to thank for this new Miley? Pharrell Williams, whom she calls her "rock." "His philosophy is that it's not what you're wearing, it's the way you wear it. It's not about the music you're making, it's how you're making it."

And in a rare display of maturity, Cyrus opens up about why she acts the way she does. "I was an adult when I was supposed to be a kid. So now I'm an adult and I'm acting like a kid." Super deep, Miley. Maybe there is a method to your madness after all?

Britney Spears heads to Vegas for a huge payday

Britney Spears has signed a two-year contract with Planet Hollywood Las Vegas to be the headliner of a "cool, hip, club-like show," per producers. Her payout is a cool $310,000 per show, with the starlet performing 48 shows a year.

The final payout will be around

$15 million a year, per TMZ.com. In May, Spears talked to Shape about how she is training for the gig. "I'm doing 90 minutes of yoga twice a week in addition to a lot of cardio — hour-long sessions three times a week with my trainer, Tony Martinez," she said. "The [Vegas] performances won't be simple — they'll be a massive party from start to finish. And to pull this off, I have to be in top condition and running at full speed."

Jaden Smith on education reform

Jaden Smith took to Twitter for a series of pontifications about youth and society. "School is the tool to brainwash the youth," he wrote. "If everybody in the world dropped out of school we would have a much more intelligent society." I'm just going to throw it out there — that isn't really true.

The 15-year-old has been home-schooled since earlier this year, when the New Village Leadership Academy — founded by his parents with an allegedly Scientology-influenced curriculum — was shut down.

KAITLIN OLSON

The only chick in one of the rudest, weirdest, most maniacally funny boys' clubs on TV speaks up.

IT'S ALWAYS FUNNY ON FXX

When "It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia" premiered on FX in 2005, it was a sitcom the likes of which basic cable had never seen. Crude, irreverent to the point of insanity and unapologetically, delightfully offensive, it didn't seem destined for mainstream fame or long-term success. Now in its ninth season (on the new FXX), it's still going strong. Kaitlin Olson, who plays Dee Reynolds, opens up about the show's unexpected longevity.

What was your initial reaction when you first read Dee's character?

You know, I first read scripts and it was amazing. But the characters I was in love with were the male characters. So when they first offered [Dee] to me I said, "Listen: I definitely love this show. I love the writing, I love these characters that you've developed — except for the girl character." And Rob [McElhenney] said, "We absolutely want everyone to be interesting and unique and have their own very specific character, but still be funny." I'm glad that I trusted him, and that he wasn't lying. [Laughs]

All of the characters are despicable but lovable at the same time.

I don't know why they're lovable! I think it's because they're so ridiculous and so positive of their convictions — which are ridiculous. And I think I've just decided that underneath it all, Dee is just sort of incredibly insecure, and there's something a little vulnerable in that, which is disarming. I think maybe that's why you don't hate her. She's just trying to scratch her way to the top of this little group.

I think maybe it's because you recognize bad parts of yourself in them, but they're so unapologetic that you almost respect it.

That's really interesting, because that also kind of describes Rob's personality, and one of the things I love about him [Ed. note: The two are married in real life]. Rob doesn't apologize for anything. And I think that's definitely written into our show. It's unapologetic, and it's stuff you'd never say, but maybe things that you're thinking. Specifically, the first time we did "Lethal Weapon 5" — the whole conversation about the blackface? I mean, I was just watching it from the monitors, but I was crying. It was so funny to me because they were having a really open, honest discussion about why certain blackface was appropriate.

Was everyone shocked when you and Rob got together?

They were very surprised. Because it's such a stupid idea. Really, it's the dumbest thing we could have done. We were like, "We can't do this. This is so dumb. We've got this great thing going. We just got a second season. Why are we trying to ruin it?"

Bonus question

Were you grossed out when Rob gained all that weight for season eight?

I thought it was hilarious. I think he misses it. I think he'd love to do it again. He felt really funny. The hardest part was that there ...

was all this s--- food in our house. I was like, "Why are you doing this to me?!" At the time, I was losing the baby weight. But I was pretty proud of him. It sounds like a fun, easy thing to do, but gaining 30 pounds in a few months takes a lot of discipline!

Call it a comeback

Interview. Isaiah Washington returns to movies with the acclaimed docudrama "Blue Caprice."

Isaiah Washington is back on screens in "Blue Caprice." / GETTY IMAGES

Isaiah Washington talks a lot. A single, innocent query will prompt an epic response, veering from one subject to the next, answering 10 questions in one fell swoop. He compares a day doing interviews for his latest film, "Blue Caprice" — a film about the 2002 Beltway sniper attacks — to therapy. Still, there was only one reference to the event that seemed to torpedo his career just as it was getting big: his allegedly dropping a homophobic remark in reference to his "Grey's Anatomy" co-star T.R. Knight. He was whisked off the show and, after his next TV gig, "Bionic Woman," met a swift end, he all but disappeared. "Blue Caprice" is his alleged comeback, if a tiny one. It was made independently, with no studio money, by French director Alexandre Moors. It is not even specifically about the attacks, which don't even start till 20 minutes are left. "We did not want it to feel like a biopic," Washington says. "The character is actually not named John Allen Muhammad" — the ring-leader of the shootings, played by Washington — "but just John Allen. He wanted to blur the lines."

The events covered are more than 10 years old, but it was made to speak

"I had a Quick, Comfortable, Pleasant visit"

Real life

The 2002 attacks

As for the events portrayed in the film, Washington remembers them more as part of a larger set of tragedies. "It was one year and a month after 9/11. We were still raw," he remembers. He had just lost his mother and a friend. "I thought it was the apocalypse. The terrorists are here, right in the backyard of the president of the United States. And they can't find him?"

to our own times. "Being French, [Moors] couldn't understand how America couldn't get a handle on its violence, being the greatest country in the world," Washington says. "It was a metaphor for how violence is addictive to many Americans, and how easy it is to get firearms. You just go to a sporting goods store and for less than $200 they can be yours. If you make a plan to hurt someone, no one's going to stop you."

"Not everyone's as strong as you and I. I have my issues. I've been abused, I've been accused. The last six years people have said I have an awful axe to grind," he says, then refers to his "Grey's Anatomy" debacle. "But you haven't heard from me."

Washington has actually spent much of the last seven years abroad. After discovering he has genetic links to family in the Sierra Leone, he started making trips. He has been the chief of a small village since 2006, and has been involved in numerous humanitarian crises. He's been at work producing a documentary called "Africans Versus African Americans," about the disconnect between the continents' populaces. It's one of a handful of projects on the docket, including being a cast member on the sci-fi show "The 100" and — in a rather obvious bid to atone for past deeds — the indie "Blackbird," in which he plays the loving father of a gay son.

Though "Blue Caprice" was one of his big return films, his director wouldn't let him go hog wild to make up for lost time. "His thing was 'no acting' — that less than less is more," he recalls. "He didn't want me to do anything. He just wanted me to be as normal and matter-of-fact as possible. That was extremely difficult as an actor: to do nothing and yet speak volumes."

NICHOLAS SPARKS

Read it and weep: Nicholas Sparks had to get inside the minds of an elderly man and a college student for his new novel.

CHARACTERS TAKE THE 'LONGEST RIDE' YET

Nicholas Sparks adds double the love stories in his latest novel, "The Longest Ride," which weaves back and forth between two different couples. Characters we meet include Ira, a 91-year-old man stranded after a car crash and thinking back on his decades-long marriage, and Sophia, an East Coast gal who meets Luke, a bull rider, on a fluke night out. Sparks, known for romances that readers devour and often become movies (most recently "Safe Haven"), spoke to us about getting into the minds of both an elderly man and college student and keeping the romance alive at home.

happened, did I read that right?"

Was anything different about writing this, than your other novels?

The way I wrote it was different. Basically what I did was, I wrote Ira and Ruth's story up to the point where Ira's story intersects with Luke and Sophia's. Then I literally set Ira aside, on my desk by my computer. Then I wrote Luke and Sophia's story. Then I wrote all the way through to the end. ... Then it took three hours to drop all those sections into the appropriate place.

do you do for your books? Do you ever feel you need to explore what your characters do — in this case, that would be riding bulls or being trapped in a car?

I did not ride any bulls, but I've watched a lot of YouTube videos. My kids like [watching] the bull riding, my wife and I enjoy it. Certainly I did a lot of research, reading into bullriding in general. I have a brother-in-law who lives on a ranch, and so much of the information about the ranch, including the size of the ranch and how they spend their days, is really drawn from his specific experience. The 4H, that's my nephew's experience, the horse named Horse, that's my brother-in-law. I asked the same questions as Sophia, "What do you mean you have to roll the pumpkins?" These are literally drawn straight from my conversations.

What's something you haven't been able to experiment with yet? A setting, or a genre or a character?

I'm really fortunate in that the genre I work in allows me to really experiment with a lot of elements from other genres. In "Safe Haven," I was able to add a thriller element. In "The Notebook," I was able to add nostalgia. In "The Longest Ride," I'm able to add an epic element.

High Expectations

Last question for you. You write such romantic books. Is there a high expectation of flowers and romantic dates in the Sparks household?

There is. I do get my wife flowers, I send her cards. I just got her perfume for no reason, put it on her pillow with a card. I do my best. She's a great lady, and she deserves a little bit of romance.

This new sitcom about dudes whose pops cramp their style stars Giovanni Ribisi (likely going to waste) and Seth Green (great behind the scenes in shows like "Robot Chicken," but not always in front of the camera). ## 1930s- HOLLYWOOD THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY VOL. 1

FRANK N. BRATHWAITE

INFORMATIVE, SHOCKING, AND AMUSING

30s Hollywood has been covered in great details over the decades. In spite of this, 1930s- hollywood the Good, The Bad and The Ugly Vol. 1 provides a concentrated review of what made the decade stand out as a winner. Vol. 1 focuses on Tinseltown's highs and lows throughout a turbulent period in America's history. On the backdrop that was the Great Depression, Hollywood was able to deliver the goods to a society that had just about given up. The "movies" were the only form of cheap entertainment that provided escapism for the millions of distressed and temporarily displaced people across the country. The volume also delves into the lives of two charismatic individuals whose talents, smarts and overall appeal changed the history of the cinema forever. Plus the book compatibly covers a topic that remains as omnipresent as it was back then, Gossip! Inside, readers will get a quick case study on the origins of the "fans magazine" and how it evolved into the conglomerate of entertainment based publications, via on-line media outlets that we all are fortunate to have with us today. In modern times, many are still interested in showbiz and celebrities. It's the reason Hollywood is a billion dollar industry. Nonetheless, fascination with celebs began long ago during Hollywood's silent days. Vols. 2 and 3 completes the trilogy. Demand will bring these volumes to the marketplace expediently in the near future .

Got savings?

Investing. If the answer to that question is no — like it is with many young professionals — it's not too late to change it.

If your retirement account is more goose egg than nest egg, you're not alone — especially if you're in your 30s or 40s. Between 2007 and 2010, Gen Xers lost nearly half their wealth—an average of $33,000 per household — according to a recent study from Pew Charitable Trusts. Ouch. Luckily, it's not too late to turn things around. Let's get started.

1 Don't think about saving. You may not be broke, but living in a major U.S. city will stretch most paychecks. So don't focus on spending less right now, but saving first.

The best way to do that? Make it automatic. Behavioral finance research shows that if you set up a regular, automatic transfer to your savings or retirement account — or have your employer do it for you — you'll be amazed at how quickly your savings will add up. Glad you're nodding! Now do something. Set a reminder on your calendar or phone (research shows these alerts help, too).

You're going to need a bit of a better retirement strategy than this. MONKEY BUSINESS

Jon Stein is the founder and CEO of Betterment. / PROVIDED

2 Be smart about where you save. If you have a 401(k) or something similar, start saving here, no matter what. Save as much as you can, especially if your employer offers a match.

If you don't have access to a 401(k) — many people don't — you can open an individual retirement account, or IRA. Just be sure to go with a low-cost company, and be wary of cash incentives to open an account — which might mask other hidden fees.

Generally, if you meet the minimum balance requirement (and some companies waive that if you make automatic deposits), your IRA should cost no more than 1 percent of your total savings per year.

3 Take the long view. If investing your hard-earned money into stocks, bonds and mutual or index funds sounds scary, that's a natural fear. Here's what you need to look for: Low fees, index funds (which are also typically low-cost), and no "get-rich-quick" promises. Above all, don't let uncertainty stop you from moving forward. While we offer an easy way to get started investing at Betterment, take a look around and see what other companies offer. When it comes to your money, time is the most important investment you can make.

As you 'like' it. How to invest in the social media age

By now, we all know what social media is best for: Instagram shots of your delicious brunch, videos of cute kittens and a twerking Miley Cyrus.

But could your Facebook and Twitter streams also be a rich mine of potential stock ideas?

The folks at LikeFolio.com think so. The service, which launched in August, scans your social media feeds for the top five stocks that you and your buddies are talking about and spits out a hypothetical portfolio.

The service is free, but for it to work, you have to grant access to your Facebook and Twitter accounts, which might give some privacy activists a stroke.

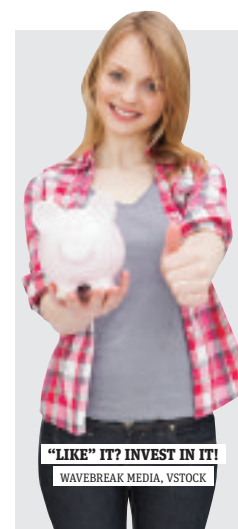

"It's all about allowing people to use social media to extract greater value out of that dialogue," says Nicole Sherrod, managing director of TD Ameritrade's trader group. "It's like the old Warren Buffett concept: Invest in what you know."

A fun idea, that there might be some real wisdom in the torrent of tweets out there. But that notion alone is enough to give some personal finance experts the willies. "I find it terrifying, to be honest," says Cliff Robb, an associate professor of personal financial planning at Kansas State University.

Intrigued by the idea, Reuters writer Chris Taylor tells Metro that he plugged his own information into LikeFolio. The top five stocks chosen: Facebook Inc., Apple Inc., Google Inc., Yahoo Inc. and LinkedIn Corp.

The good news: $10,000 invested in those stocks would have turned into $16,261 in a single year, garnering 62.6 percent annual returns over the past 12 months. REUTERS

LikeFolio allows you to compare your own top stocks against those mentioned in celebrity social media feeds, with the minds of 162 top celebrities probed for their musings on companies.

The top five results: Nike, Google, Apple, Facebook and Viacom, with a $10,000 investment up $3,887 in a year.

London Fashion Week

SUNDAY

12 p.m.
Mulberry

It's a melee outside Claridge's hotel, as the paparazzi, street-style photographers and editors all clamor toward the entrance of the Mulberry show to witness creative director Emma Hill's last hurrah for the label. Once inside, the ballroom itself is equally frenetic, but the British garden tea party theme (cakes and all!) makes it palatable. The whole scene is grandiose, from the celeb attendees — such as "It" girl Alexa Chung and Anna Wintour — to the flower-framed catwalk. A quintessentially English theme runs through the '60s-inspired collection, with Cara Delevingne opening in an oversized floral jacquard coat and shorts. Breeziness continues with wide-leg cropped trousers, shifts and striped knee and ankle-length skirts in nude, florals and blues.

RICHARD PECKETT

Topshop Unique
preshow

Kate Moss just took her front-row seat next to Topshop owner Philip Green and Wintour, effectively reducing the editor sitting next to me to an aggressive paparazzo. "Are you Instagramming this?" she asks her assistant, sitting behind us. But that looks unlikely, as the trifecta is already shielded by a wall of DSLRs, iPhones and Samsungs.

KENYA HUNT

3:20 p.m.
Topshop Unique

Between all the leggy skirts and back-revealing dresses I've seen so far, it's hard to tell which body part will get the most play come spring.

Both ideas feature prominently in the Topshop show — from the opening look (a cute forest green jacket, graphic blouse and matching flouncy mini) to all the backless slip dresses that pepper the show. There's a relaxed airiness to the clothes that make them much better suited for days in the park (a point driven home by the grassy runway) than eight hours in the office. But the simple, low-maintenance shapes are deceptive: Those baggy trousers casually hang low in a way that demands a jutting hip bone to keep them up, while the tiniest of spaghetti straps barely do their jobs in keeping the models' breasts covered. I'm not sure how anyone who doesn't come in model size can pull off these looks. The graphic shirt-dresses and jumpsuits, however, look much easier for the average Topshop consumer to wear. KH

8:30 p.m.
Jonathan
Saunders

Jonathan Saunders' set at the Tate Britain is a one-finger salute to unvarying tradition, with giant light orbs overhanging the runway, which leads to a psychedelic sunset screen. We're in the summer of love, as seen through Saunders' eyes. It's a laid-back vibe: His girls are too tripped out to care about formality, flaunting slouchy satin shorts, track pants, Western-inspired shirts and bomber jackets teamed with circular "Natural Born Killers"-style sunglasses. Dressier pieces include flower prints bursting out like a potent LSD hit onto organza shirts and spaghetti-style mini-dresses. It's euphoria for buyers and editors alike. RP

MONDAY

10:45 a.m.
Christopher Kane

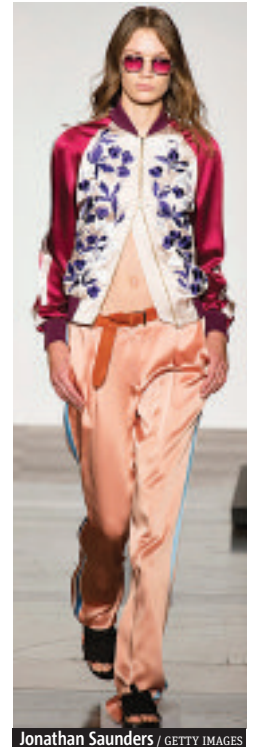

About an hour before Christopher Kane's show, I received a press release announcing that he'll be opening his first store in London next year. That's no doubt due to a significant investment he received from the luxury conglomerate Kering earlier this month. And tellingly, this collection reveals a new sense of maturity, commercialism and polish. As I watch the show unfold, I can see the merchandising at play. But impressively, Kane doesn't sacrifice the creativity that has made his show one of the week's biggest tickets. Note the way he balances the wearability of a beautifully tailored black suit with the directional quality of those plastic, futuristic appliques decorating both. Other pieces are a bit more visionary, such as a series of futuristic dresses and skirt suits that look like they've been sprayed with metallic color. They are as memorable to this collection as his neon laser-cut lace, graphic camouflage and leather crochet moments from seasons past. KH

You might not expect it, but Denver is widely praised for its Oktoberfest. / PROVIDED

Leavenworth is a real, live Bavarian village. / PROVIDED

Prost! Oktoberfest is here

Festivals. Break out the lederhosen; it's time for copious amounts of beer.

What started out as a celebration to mark the marriage of two Bavarian royals in 1810 has turned into a global annual kegger. The mother of all Oktoberfests is a 16-day, beer-fueled party in Munich, Germany, that has spawned countless imitations. Here are a few in America that will be worth your time and sobriety.

Oh my! George Takei!

Oktoberfest Zinzinnati Cincinnati, OH Sept. 20-22

The country's largest Oktoberfest celebration draws a crowd of more than 500,000 (consuming 1.6 million ounces of beer), and it's no surprise why. Cincinnati's German community has been a prominent presence since the 1800s. The party takes up six blocks and is free. But perhaps the biggest draw this year will be the World's Largest Chicken Dance, hosted and led by

"Star Trek" and Internet legend George Takei.

The Napa Valley of beer

Oktoberfest Denver Denver, Colo. Sept. 27-29, Oct. 4-6

Though it doesn't have strong German roots, it's no surprise that the Mile High City boasts what USA Today and Maxim magazine have touted as "The Best Oktoberfest" in the United States. Denver appears to be vying for the title of America's Beer Capital with its respected breweries, brewpubs and the largest beer festival in the country. Oktoberfest Denver will offer the requisite "Food, Bier, Music and Stein Hoisting" at its fest. In addition, David Hasselhoff loyalists will be pleased to hear that the 5K run, Das Hustlehoff, will pay tribute to The Hoff, and each runner will receive a free Das Hustlehoff shirt.

Munich, USA

If you are longing for an Oktoberfest experience closer to the real thing, head to one of these.

Leavenworth Oktoberfest Leavenworth, Wash. Oct. 4-5, 11-12, 18-19

Once the headquarters for the Great Northern Railway, the city of Leavenworth found itself struggling after the railroad relocated early in the 1900s. In 1962, a committee was formed, its sole task to revitalize the city's economy — by turning Leavenworth into a replica of a Bavarian village.

Helen, Ga. Sept. 19-Oct. 27

Helen is a former logging town that underwent a similarly Bavarian transformation. Once there, you can also take in the late-October fall foliage.

Frankenmuth Oktoberfest Frankenmuth, Mich. Sept. 19-22

Although Michigan is synonymous with American beer, Frankenmuth, Michigan's Little Bavaria, promotes its German heritage and boasts the first Oktoberfest outside of Munich to be officially sanctioned by the mayor of Munich, so you know this one has to be good.

For the procrastinators

Tulsa Oktoberfest Tulsa, Okla. Oct. 17-20

The Munich Oktoberfest ends the first weekend in October, and in case you have too much on your plate to participate in a timely manner, there are a number of celebrations that are planning to oompah-pah well into the end of October. Tulsa Oktoberfest is one of the most popular celebrations around the country, and for good reason — namely, keg-rolling contests. But this year's celebration has already been hit with controversy before the first pitcher has even been poured: This year, they're doing away with the 64-ounce pitchers and replacing them with 34-ounce souvenir steins. Many are crying foul at the downsizing, but will probably just end up drowning their tears in steins full of beer.

Julia Cameron says we need to stop thinking about kids in terms of the future so much and "start thinking about what makes them happy now." / CREATAS RF

Help your kids cultivate creativity

Thinking outside the box. "The Artist's Way" isn't just for adults anymore.

Author Julia Cameron says creativity is just as much a part of us as blood and bones. She describes the skill as a part of our spiritual DNA: a part that children need to develop to be fully rounded individuals.

Cameron wrote "The Artist's Way for Parents" 20 years after she penned "The Artist's Way," as a way to help her own daughter, who recently had her first child, and other parents who wish to put their children on a creative path.

"Creativity is living our life to the fullest," she explains. "It is expanding our selves in the direction of our gifts. When we do that, we get a sense of happiness and satisfaction."

As a parent, it can be hard to find one's place in a child's creative processes and to figure out in what direction to send that child. But according to Cameron, it's not

Strategize, explore and reflect

Here are three tips:

- With your child, keep a journal where you "vent, muse, strategize and dream. They siphon off negativity as they provoke, clarify, comfort, cajole, prioritize and synchronize the day at hand," she writes in the book.
- Go on a once-weekly creative expedition with your child. It doesn't have to be a big trip, but it should be inspirational.
- Together, highlight your favorite moments of the day as a bedtime ritual. "[It forges] happy memories," Cameron notes.

Quoted

"Children are naturally creative, and their gifts can be anything. We need to stop thinking in terms of the future and start thinking about what makes them happy now. When we do that, we can help them become more confident in their creativity."

their creativity."

But how can we do that? And what if you wouldn't even categorize yourself as much of a creative person? In her book, Cameron takes the reader through the art of creative cultivation, step by step.

"The book is about ways we become more creative so we can help our children to become more creative. Just go for it and try," she says.

Business can teach you how to be a better parent

Who's the boss?

"Chief Daddy Officer" Christos Efessiou has learned how the two worlds mesh.

Christos Efessiou didn't know much about parenting when his daughter Persephone was born. But he knew business.

In his new book, "CDO Chief Daddy Officer: The Business of Fatherhood," Efessiou teaches that parenting can directly parallel with the business world. He gave us tips on how to successfully apply a business-minded approach to parenting.

Lead by example

"The most important thing is that parents need to be

Emotional vs. physical

Being a present parent

Can parents have it all? "Absolutely," answers Efessiou, "but not in the same moment."

Even as a CEO traveling all around the country, Efessiou believes you can still be a present parent.

"Parents can be furthest from their children sitting at the same couch watching TV — they're worlds apart," he notes. "Then there are other parents that travel all of the time, and they're as close to their children as a heartbeat away."

"The parenting of a child is as much emotional as it is physical," says the author. "The child knows you love them as long as they feel you loving them — whether you are in the same house or the other end of the world."

mentors to their children, and they need to actually lead by example," says Efessiou. "That means you cannot say to your child, 'Do as I say, not as I do.'"

"In business, we don't start a business without a plan," he says. "We plan the elements of the business. So in parenting you have to make the conscious decision to decide what kind of parent you want to be and what it is that you're willing to sacrifice."

Proactive parenting

No parent BFFs

"You cannot be your child's buddy," Efessiou says. "You need to be able to assert yourself in days of turmoil and days that your authority needs to be exercised. If you are friends with your employees, they will not respect you."

GMO business is booming, and so are our fears

Re: 'Take a kinder look at good ol' GMOs' (Metro, Sept. 16) Letter writers Matt Brosnan and Kelton Barnsley prepared a great case to alleviate fears concerning GMOs in Metro.

I also believe the future of feeding 8 billion people resides in the science of genetic modifications. My fear is in the "business" of biotech patents and not the production of crops. Monsanto's genetically modified corn seed is proprietary merchandise controlling almost 90 percent of all corn crops grown in this country.

Farmers aren't allowed to regrow previously harvested seeds, but are forced to buy new GM seeds every year! This system of legalized agricultural racketeering will be more harmful than any GMO ever created.

RICHARD BRITTLE, VIA EMAIL

GMOs are a-maize-ing purveyors of nightmares

Re: 'Take a kinder look at good ol' GMOs' (Metro, Sept. 16) Letter writers Matt Brosnan and Kelton Barnsley, reiterating the simplistic view of genetically engineered organisms put out by Monsanto could/should experience firsthand, like I have, the violence attributed to making GMO foods. GMO foods are made by inserting one gene with a needle into another gene. After eating non-GMO foods for a very long time, because I thought they were dangerous, I accidentally ate some GMO corn and experienced a horrific nightmare of needles being shot into my body. Never again will I knowingly eat ANY GMOs.

Fit Education Into Your Life With an Online Graduate Certificate Program

Are you thinking about graduate school but wonder if you have the time? Do you need to get specialized knowledge at an advanced level for your job? Do you want to start doing some graduate work now, so that you will later be able to enroll in a full degree program?

If you have answered "yes" to any of these questions, SUNY Empire State College's School for Graduate Studies advance certificate programs may be just what you are looking for. The college offers several online graduate certificates in the following disciplines: Human Resource Management, Health Care Management, Project Management, Nonprofit Management, Veterans Services, Child and Family Advocacy, Public History, Global Brand Marketing and more. Most are 12 credits.

Working adults pressed for time and in need of a short, focused program can now earn an online certificate from SUNY Empire State College at a time that best suits their schedule. Graduate certificates are ideal for the busy professional looking for career retooling in a rapidly changing work environment, for professional development or just for personal interest. The Veterans Services certificate is one of the first of its kind in the nation. This certificate provides professionals with the skills and knowledge they need to support veterans as they transition to civilian life.

These certificate programs may be of interest to health care administrators, human resources managers, directors of nonprofit organizations, public historians, as well as veterans' services and public sector administrators. There is also a more general certificate in project management that can apply across a variety of professional fields.

The graduate certificates may be used as a stepping-stone into one of the college's master's degree programs, provided students meet other admission requirements. All of the graduate programs are delivered online with some requiring attendance at occasional weekend residencies.

NYSCAS

a division of
TOURO COLLEGE
New York School of Career and Applied Studies

What do you think of when you hear the figure "a million dollars"? Some people might imagine a winning lottery ticket, others the grand prize on a TV game show. But what if we were to suggest "a college education" as something even more likely to translate into money, along with all of its other benefits? Well, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) estimates that the difference in median income between someone holding only a high school diploma and someone holding a Bachelor's degree could translate into more than one million dollars in the course of a working life. Food for thought, we think you'll agree.

The question is, "Where should I go to earn a degree?" Our answer? Touro College's New York School of Career and Applied Studies (NYSCAS). We call NYSCAS "The College with the Personal Touch," and here's why: From the moment you arrive at one of our sites, you'll be treated more like a family member than simply another prospective applicant. Our admissions counselors and academic advisors will work with you one-on-one to show you the best ways to get started with your college education, and our financial aid counselors will help you navigate the process of paying for it. And we won't stop there! As a NYSCAS student, from the application process through graduation you'll be guided every step of the way by a faculty and staff dedicated to keeping you on the road to success.

There are lots of other benefits to being a student at NYSCAS. For example, with 7 sites throughout New York City, each one close to public transportation, we can make your college experience more convenient. Morning, afternoon, evening — even weekend — classes permit you to work your class schedule around other commitments such as a full-time job or being a full-time parent.

It's very easy to get the ball rolling on a new career and a new pathway in life. Just drop into any of our sites and sit down with one of our admissions counselors. They are eager to answer your questions about careers, majors, programs, application procedures, and anything else that concerns you about being a college student. You can also call us at (877) 3-NYSCAS ext. 1003 and make an appointment at your convenience to get the information you need. Touro College is an equal opportunity institution.

Fulfilling dreams, one degree at a time.

Meet Christina Woo, a Hospitality Management graduate from a prestigious New York university. Despite obtaining a well-recognized, much-admired degree, Ms. Woo realized she needed real, tangible skills that would qualify her to begin a dream career in Health Information Technology. She knew that returning to the large university where she was just another student in the crowd just wouldn't do it.

"On a big campus, you can lose yourself and fall behind in your studies. This time, I wanted to try to attend a smaller college and compare my experiences." Now, thanks to her degree from Plaza College, Ms. Woo is finally fulfilling her dreams of working in a valuable role within the healthcare industry.

"I have applied everything I learned at Plaza College to my current position. The skills I acquired in billing and coding, medical terminology, virtual labs, and insurance reimbursement have helped me excel to no end. Plaza College prepared me, and I was able to jump into my position and not be afraid of anything." In addition to thriving in her job, Ms. Woo will be returning to Plaza College in January 2014 to obtain her BBA in Patient Information Management.

An integral part of the medical field:

Every time a patient receives treatment, a record is created. These records are essential in ensuring appropriate and quality patient care as well as the financial health of hospitals, doctors' offices, nursing homes and many other healthcare organizations. Health Information Technologists are the integral part of the "behind the scenes" medical team that combines health care, business, and information technology to manage the medical records process.

- Health Information Technology is one of the nation's most in-demand professions. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, employment of Health Information Technologists is projected to grow 21% from 2010 to 2020 - that's much faster than the average for all other occupations<sup>1</sup>!

- The daily responsibilities of a Health Information Technologist include organizing and maintaining paper and electronic health records; ensuring the quality, accuracy, and confidentiality of vital medical documentation; and utilizing various classification systems to code health records for reimbursement processes.

- Professionals in this field are prepared to work anywhere health information is collected. This includes, but is not limited to, hospitals, physician practices, nursing homes, pharmaceutical companies, government and research agencies, and legal firms.

Take advantage of affordable tuition and a competitive degree.

Today, the looming cost of a college education is a stressful topic for many families—and BMCC, as part of the City University of New York (CUNY), offers a solution to that dilemma.

We provide a high-quality, competitive and remarkably affordable college education.

That affordability is assured by the CUNY Safety Net, which includes low tuition, as well as access to an abundance of federal and state aid.

Not only that, as a BMCC student, you'll sustain fewer education loans than other college students in New York and across the country. You'll graduate with job-ready skills and respected academic credentials, well prepared to begin your career or pursue further degrees.

Numbers speak louder than words

As a degree-seeking BMCC student and NYC resident, you'll pay just $1,950 at this time, for tuition and fees—while your peers attending private colleges will lay out a staggering $15,500 to $25,000 a semester.

We want you to gain knowledge and degrees, not debt and uncertainty.

In a recent year, over 21,000 BMCC students received more than $102 million in assistance from at least one federal, state or municipal financial aid program, and BMCC provided scholarships for close to $700,000—more awarded than by any other CUNY college.

We also disbursed almost $70 million in Pell grants in a recent year, and BMCC ranks in the top 20 colleges—out of 5,000 schools, nationwide—in Pell grant disbursement.

Degrees that set careers in motion

Many BMCC graduates are on track to transfer into designated bachelor's degree programs at CUNY and other 4-year colleges.

These include our Criminal Justice, Biotechnology, Forensic Accounting, Health Information Technology, Communication Studies, Bilingual Education, and Mathematics and Science for Secondary Education majors.

Likewise, BMCC graduates in Engineering, Science, Mathematics, English, Theatre, Computer Information Systems, Business Management, Media Arts and Technology, Human Services, Allied Health and Nursing are well prepared for the third year of a 4-year degree program.

In fact, the BMCC value continues, if you transfer to a CUNY 4-year college, where tuition is only about $5,000 a year at this time—dramatically less than private college tuition.

We highly value the success of every BMCC student. We want you to gain knowledge and degrees, not debt and uncertainty. Start here, and go anywhere your ambition takes you.

Harvey visits doctor

Mets ace Matt Harvey visited renowned surgeon Dr. James Andrews yesterday for a second opinion on the partially torn UCL in his right elbow. The team said they will have a further update on a decision to have surgery today.

Coples back at practice, Wilkerson OK

A defense that held the league's top total offense from a season ago to just 13 points last Thursday night is likely to get a boost this week with the returns of Quinton Coples and Muhammad Wilkerson. Coples dressed for practice yesterday, signaling an imminent return to the playing field following an ankle injury suffered in the second preseason game. Coples has not played or practiced since the injury.

"He just had surgery three weeks ago but I know he's been doing an unbelievable job in his rehab," head coach Rex Ryan said. "That'd be something if we could get him, but I'm not sure how possible that is. But we'll see."

Wilkerson wouldn't commit to playing, but said, "I should be fine." He said he felt the normal soreness.

"Just a sprain, stepped on somebody's foot and rode it," Wilkerson said. "That's about it." KRISTIAN DYER

Giants picking up pieces after stunning start

NFL. Tom Coughlin relayed a positive message to his team after they dropped to 0-2.

Eli Manning leads the NFL with nine interceptions this season. GETTY IMAGES

Giants head coach Tom Coughlin wasn't available to the media yesterday, but his players were, as they were left to deal with even more questions regarding their sloppy loss to the Broncos and 0-2 start.

"Well, we can only get better," Eli Manning said. "I'm not going to lay down, that's for sure. I have to point out to myself to not force things if I don't have to, but I'm going to compete."

Coughlin was not around for the media, as he was attending to a family emergency. But he was with the team earlier in the day and his players were happy to forward the coach's message.

"I think we're a team that's right on the brink, right on the cusp of having a big game, a statement game and taking it from there," Cruz said.

TONY WILLIAMS

Back on the horse

The Giants are well-versed in dealing with adversity and, to a man, know all it takes is a big game at Carolina next Sunday to change opinions.

- "The record shows 0-2, so at this point we're an 0-2 team," safety Antrel Rolle said. "It's up to us what we're going to do from this point on. We can either get in the tank — which is something that we will never, ever do — or we can go out and fight like I hope we will do and like I see us going out there and doing. ... There are definitely a lot of things we could clean up."

CLIENTS TESTIMONIAL

-My name is Lisa I visited Mr shaman 2 weeks ago and I'm very happy with his work, he told me from the beginning how my husband was cheating on me with my friend from work, we put a spell on him and he is not longer with that woman. thanks Mr shaman.

-Mark from Brooklyn: I have tried many time with other psychics to get a cleansing to improved the sales on my business but nothing really worked. Mr Shaman told me that one of my employees was doing voodoo on me, and I saw with my own eyes that he was really helping me.

-My name is Samantha I'm Gay and I'm from Long Island and I visited Mr shaman in his office in Manhattan and then in New Jersey, to get my girlfriend back, she is living with me again and I feel like the most happy person in the world.
